SHOE FOR WOMEN

6242
Russia Calf and Gun Metal

NEVER accept a pair of shoes because you "guess they'll do." When you buy La France Shoes you have the choice of so many styles and leathers that you leave the store with the pleasant conviction that you have got just what you "had your mind set on." Here is a sturdy, easy shoe for travel or every-day.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Many a man lies while standing up for himself.

A man's opinions may be heavy and still carry no weight.

It is human nature to blame others for most of our meanness.

Anyway, the average woman hasn't the cheek to raise whiskers.

It doesn't advance a woman when she puts herself before a mirror.

You can sometimes tell a wise man by the smart things he doesn't say.

She is a wise girl who can train up a rich uncle in the way he should go.

Much of that which is called "pure cussedness" is nothing but human nature.

A woman doesn't consider the wearing of diamonds vulgar—unless she hasn't any.

An easy way to flatter a young woman is to tell her she doesn't eat any more than a bird.

Anything that a dry goods box statesman doesn't know about politics isn't worth knowing—from his point of view.

RANKIN AND McLEMORE.

Rev. George C. Rankin, editor of Home and State at Dallas, and Jeff McLemore, editor of State Topics at Houston, are engaged in a wordy warfare. They are scraping the dictionaries with fine tooth combs to find words vile enough to say about each other. It half of what they say about each other be true, then both are in a bad way.

Dr. Rankin, in some way, manages to keep up a continual fight with somebody. In 1906 he made war on Dr. T. H. Morris, formerly pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, and in the last issue of State Topics Editor McLemore quotes the following from Dr. Morris in answer to an attack made on him by Dr. Rankin:

"The provocation is very strong here to utter some more scathing words in reply to this most scurrilous and utterly false attack, but I have ever deemed such utterances out of place, even though perfectly true. I shall leave Dr. Rankin the full enjoyment of his low, vile methods of controversy. I can not stoop so low to reply to him. My life and character stand forth in a perfect refutation of such base charges. The only wonder to me is that Dr. Rankin did not charge me with running a blind tiger in a back alley of Bonham and a gambling hell in the study of my church. The latter statements would have been as true as the first. Truth and justice seem to be unknown quantities with the editor of The Advocate. Every person who has ever known me from a child is ready to rise up and give that attack its proper appellation. * * * The attack is so offensive and base that it spends its force of its own corruption and only reveals Dr. Rankin as utterly unworthy of the place he holds as the editor of the great paper of Texas Methodism."

HOGS VERSUS COTTON.

The Eagle editor saw a Brazos county farmer in Bryan a few days ago with a nice lot of home-raised and home-cured bacon and hams. He sold it out as fast as he could weigh it up at 20 cents a pound for the bacon and 25 cents for the hams. He could have sold a carload at these prices.

What does that mean, Mr. Farmer? It means that a 200-pound hog would bring as much as a bale of cotton. It also means that it did not cost half as much to raise the hog as it did to raise the bale of cotton. It also means that it cost practically nothing to kill the hog and cure the meat, while every bale of cotton means $15 for picking, $2.50 for ginning, warehouse charges, insurance, etc., and when the whole procedure is wound up there is very little left.

It also means that the hog farmer, instead of having to work day and night on his cotton, has plenty of time to look after his feed crops and in the fall he fills his barns with corn, oats, sorghum, peanuts, peas, hay and other feeds. The cotton farmer, on the other hand, is forced to spend every cent of his cotton money for feed, and then go in debt at the stores for his bacon and other supplies. The lesson intended to be conveyed by this article is that there is money in other things besides cotton, and that all-cotton farming will impoverish any country on the face of the earth.

The people at Waco are calling for Hon. Waller S. Baker to enter the race for attorney general. At Corsicana they are calling for Hon. Richard Mays. Men are hearing the call everywhere, yet the old Biblical truth should not be lost sight of that "many are called and few chosen."

The long string of cars standing on Bryan street every day loaded with feedstuff should be an overwhelming argument and object lesson to our farmers to plant every inch of available land in feed crops of some kind.

Taft still has about twice as many instructed votes as Teddy and continues to look like a winner.

The Waco Times-Herald says Morris

This Month on the Farm.

1. Plant cotton and corn, but not until your land is thoroughly prepared, and not until you have secured good seed and seen to it that your planter does perfect work.
2. Plant seed patches of both cotton and corn so as to have good seed of your own next spring.
3. Plant some pasture lots for the hogs, rape early in the month, cow-peas, soy beans and peanuts after the ground becomes thoroughly warm.
4. Look after all the livestock; put them on pasture, but don't cut off the grain feed at once. See that work stock are properly fed, and that all young things are freed from lice.
5. Arrange for plenty of both Irish and sweet potatoes; keep the garden going.
6. Look after the orchard—spray, plow, fertilize.
7. Prepare land for hay crops, and be sure that the acreage is liberal.
8. Start the cultivation right—that is, with harrows and weeders; and at the right time—that is, before the grass starts.
9. Screen the house; drain all puddles near it; see that all garbage is removed from about it.
10. Open the windows and let the sunshine in the house during the day; open them at night and let the fresh air into the bedrooms.
